Description
I'm running Tvheadend 4.2.6-7~g561355130 on Linux 4.9.0-4-amd64 #1 SMP Debian 4.9.65-3+deb9u1 (2017-12-23) x86_64. The timeshift buffer is growing unlimited despite setting unlimited size to false.
My settings are:
<pre>{ "enabled": true, "ondemand": false, "path": "/data2/tvh_timeshift/", "max_period": 60, "unlimited_period": true, "max_size": 10000, "ram_size": 0, "unlimited_size": false, "ram_only": false, "ram_fit": false, "teletext": false }</pre>
Snapshot of size:
<pre>root@ZEROSERVER:/# du -hx /data2/tvh_timeshift/ sort -n -r tail -n 10 54G /data2/tvh_timeshift/buffer/38 54G /data2/tvh_timeshift/buffer 54G /data2/tvh_timeshift/</pre>

On what version?

#3 - 2020-08-13 11:25 - Markus Endres

tvheadend Build: 4.2.8-36~g5bdcfd8ac
on Debian 4.9.210-1+deb9u1 (2020-06-07) x86_64 GNU/Linux

Linux ZEROSERVER 4.9.0-12-amd64 #1 SMP

Update to latest master.

Now running HTS Tvheadend 4.3-1899~gc3204bc6f on debian (4.9.0-12-amd64 #1 SMP Debian 4.9.210-1+deb9u1 (2020-06-07) x86_64 GNU/Linux)

And again the buffer is growing unlimited...

My settings are now:

  "enabled": true,
  "ondemand": false,
  "max_period": 60,
  "unlimited_period": true,
  "max_size": 100000,
  "ram_size": 0,
  "unlimited_size": false,
  "ram_only": false,
  "ram_fit": false,
  "teletext": false

Last time it went up to 192 GB

#7 - 2021-01-14 11:22 - Markus Endres

Buffer is still growing unlimited.

Tvheadend 4.3-1923~gaaca05cc1 on Debian 4.9.0-14-amd64

I did now install a 64GB SSD only for the buffer to prevent SERVER crashes...
